LICOR BEIRAO – PORTUGAL'S NATIONAL LIQUEUR

Licor Beirão is Portugal's national drink and is considered one of the world's best liqueur to sip. Comes in a stunning and striking bottle that sets the luxurious tone of Licor Beirao. Each bottle is festooned with a yellow ribbon tied by hand. Licor Beirao is sold in more than 40 countries around the world

Licor Beirao was originally produced in the 19th century as a medicinal aid for stomach pain. The seeds, spices and herbs liqueur are produced in the J. Carranca Redondo distillery since 1929. It is made from locally sourced water and a secret recipe of 13 botanicals passed down through three family generations. The original copper stills are used in the production process and cold maceration for a minimum of three weeks allows the aromas and flavours of the botanicals to infuse the spirit base. It is followed by a double distillation, after which the liqueur is filtered and stored in stainless steel vats for a few months prior to bottling.
